

If you have 'piped' medical gases, this affects you!

Helping you achieve compliance FAST

Since 1993, Vital Resus have been providing Medical Services, Sales, and Technical Support.

Now, we'd love to help you.

An amendment to the Gas and Electricity (Consumer Safety) Act 2017 was passed on 6 August 2020 and requires any person who carries out certain medical gas works to be licensed under the Home Building Act 1989. An extension to the legislation transitional period was granted to the 1st October 2022 by Parliament. From this date, penalties will apply for medical gas work conducted without the appropriate license.

There are financial penalties, and potential jail time, for individuals and companies that do not comply. The penalties are up to $22,00 for individuals and up to $110,000 for corporations. As per Home building Act 1989 No 147*

Vital Resus Australia is compliant and licenced in accordance with the new AS2896-2021.
